referees for the eight-round bout between the two champions, Mike O'Dowd, middleweight, and Jack Britton, welterweight, at the Sportsmen's Club, Newark, to-morrow night, Blim Brennan, who has capably handled several big bouts in Jersey, was sisted for the job, but through the neworders issued by the commission a shift has been made and Harry Lewis was selected for the important job.

Through the desire of Dan Morgan, Britton's manager, to demonstrate the ability of his sensational lightweight, Eddie Pitzsimmons, there is as added bout. Morgan told Promoter Mackay to secure any boxer in the world who could make 135 ringside to meet his protege. Johnny Summers of Newark, who has a big "rop" as a knockerout, will oppose the Yonkers entry.

Jack Coyne, the Newark welterweight, must have a charmed life. To see him training at Stillman's sym one would never think that he has gone through the severest test of any American boxer in the big world's war. Jack received about a hundred shrapnel wounds. His legs are cov-erad with marks where the bits of iron were extricated. Over and un-der his eyes are powder stains.

The Newark boxer was with the 77th Division, 36th Infantry. On Oct. 8 he was wounded, and for two months was laid up in French hos-pitals. He was in the first detachment of wounded to be treated at the Grand Central Palace. It was while convalescing there that he refereed several bouts for the Boxers' Loyalty League. He was confined to the hospital at Camp Dix two weeks and then discharged, after which he acted as an instructor at Camp Morgan,
